FLAVOR PROFILE

Alaskan Icy Bay IPA features hop bitterness with citrus and grapefruit notes alongside a smooth malt backbone, with a dry finish.

INGREDIENTS

Alaskan Icy Bay IPA is made from glacier-fed water and a blend of Summit, Apollo and Cascade hops and premium two-row pale and specialty malts.

HISTORY

India Pale Ale is a style of ale originally derived from a colonial thirst for British-brewed beers. By initially brewing the beer to high specific gravities it could continue to ferment during the journey to British colonies. Larger amounts of hops were also added for their preservative properties and resulted in a golden beer with a hoppy flavor.

BEER POWERED BEER

Alaskan beers are brewed with energy generated by a steam boiler fueled entirely by dried spent grain—a byproduct of the brewing process. That's what we call Beer Powered Beer, and it's how we brew in the most efficient and cleanest way possible in this beautiful place we call home.

THE STORY BEHIND THE LABEL

The surfers who ride the waves of Yakutat and Icy Bay are prepared for air temperatures well below freezing, and water temperatures not too much higher. Surfing in Alaska is sometimes called blue face surfing, and it requires a special breed of adventurer. Alaskan Icy Bay IPA has the bold taste, brisk bitter bite, and citrus hop aroma to match the intensity of a remote ride on a wave breaking on a solitary Alaskan beach.

FOOD PAIRING

The pronounced hop flavor makes this style of beer a delicious accompaniment to grilled Alaskan prawns and bold, spicy flavors like Thai and Indian foods.

COASTAL CODE

Alaskan Brewing Co. commits 1% of all proceeds from Alaskan Icy Bay IPA to support the cleanup and preservation of coastlines and waterways in an initiative called the Coastal CODE. This program has raised over $250,000 has been donated and distributed through grants, and over 1 million pounds of trash have been removed from cleanup efforts made possible by the CODE.
